ABSTRACT

The goal of this survey is to identify all doctorate degrees granted in the US from 1936 through 1950 and to determine where the degree recipients earned their first (usually baccalaureate) degrees. The data concern the fields of anthropology and sociology, business and commerce, economics, education, fine arts and architecture, geography, history and civilization, home economics, jurisprudence, language, literature and philology (English and foreign), library science, linguistics, philosophy, political science, psychology, sociology and speech. Part I presents data on the production of doctorates in the various fields by institution. Part II contains data on BA origins of doctorates tabulated in Part I. Part III presents tables showing distribution of time lapses between baccalaureate and doctorate award, the number of persons completing their doctorates at the same institution they earned their BA, and comparing 4 categories of institutions as baccalaureate origins of doctorates: US doctorate-granting schools, US schools at which the masters degree is the highest degree awarded, US schools which award only baccalaureate degrees, and all foreign schools. Introduction

This is the third monograph on baccalaureate origins of doctorates published by the National Academy of Sciences-National Research Council. In June of 1948 the Academy-Research Council published the first results of its survey of doctorates awarded in twenty-eight natural science fields during the years 1936-1945 inclusive. Tabulations in the first monograph presented the number of doctorates produced during this period by each doctoral institution in each field, rankings of doctoral institutions in the production of doctorates, the number of doctorates for which each undergraduate institution was the baccalaureate origin, rankings of baccalaureate institutions in this respect, and some related information such as the distribution of time lapses between the award of the baccalaureate and the award of the doctorate.

The second monograph was concerned with the same natural science fields as the first. It contained the original data for the period 1936-1945, corresponding data for the period 1946-1950, and some preliminary (unverified) data for the years 1951, 1952 and 1953. In addition to the original presentations, there were tabulations of yearly production, tabulations of production by state and region for both periods, and some graphs showing yearly trends in production, comparisons in production among fields, and comparisons of regions in the United States with respect to baccalaureate origins and doctorate production.

The goal of the doctorate survey is the identification of all persons granted doctorate degrees in the United States, from 1936 on, and the determination of where and when they got their first (usually baccalaureate) degrees. Only earned degrees of such types as the Ph.D., Sc.D. and D.P.H., requiring a dissertation based upon original scholarship or research, are included. Professional degrees such as M.D. or D.D.S. are not included. Honorary degrees, in all cases where they are known to be such, are excluded. The present monograph is concerned with the following fields and wherever the word "doctorate" appears in this book by itself, the reference will be to an earned doctorate in one of these fields:

Anthropology and Archaeology
Business and Commerce
Economics
Education
Fine Arts and Architecture
Geography
History and Civilization
Home Economics
Jurisprudence
Language, Literature, and Philology (English)
Language, Literature, and Philology (Foreign and General)
Library Science
Linguistics
Philosophy
Political Science
Psychology
Sociology
Speech

A special word needs to be said about three of these fields. The previous monographs on the natural sciences contained numbers for the fields of anthropology, geography, and psychology. These were supposed to have been doctorates in the physical and natural science aspects of the particular fields. Doctorates in the social science aspects of these fields were to have been included in the present monograph. However, a recheck of the data used for the previous monographs disclosed that a number of social science doctorates got into these publications. Further consideration of the problem forced the conclusion that no sharp line could be drawn between persons in the social science aspects of these fields and those in the natural science aspects of them. Many cross the line, if indeed there is any such line, both in their training and in their subsequent work. It was therefore decided to publish numbers in these fields which are for each field as a whole and not separated into physical and social sciences. The numbers presented in this volume for the three fields in question are for all doctorates awarded during the period 1936-1950, including those already listed in the two previous volumes.

For each person included in this study, the following data, to the extent that they were available, were collected.

1) Name
2) All degrees (type, year, and institution conferring)
3) Field of doctorate study specialization
4) Employer
5) Function (type of work done)
6) Residential address

Data on the last three items were incomplete and, in those cases where they were obtained, could not be relied upon because of the great likelihood of change. Data on items 2 and 3 are presented in this monograph. Calendar years rather than school years are used.

The data upon which this study is based now exist in the following forms:

1) Rosters of doctorate holders listed alphabetically by last names. These are in the Office of Scientific Personnel of the Academy-Research Council.

2) File cards, one for each doctorate holder, containing all the information currently on hand for each one. These are filed alphabetically by last name and by calendar year of doctorate award. They are in the Office of Scientific Personnel of the Academy-Research Council.

3) A set of International Business Machine cards on which the data are punched. These are filed in the office of the I.B.M. installation of the Academy-Research Council.

Classification of Institutions

The baccalaureate tables (Table 6 and Table 9) in the second part of this book contain a column labeled "Institutional Classification." Entries under this column are taken directly from the U.S. Office of Education publication, "Education Directory, 1955-56, Part 3, Higher Education" by Theresa Birch Wilkins except that Arabic instead of Roman numerals are herein used. The publication gives two types of categorizations which are reproduced here:

"THE FOLLOWING CATEGORIES HAVE BEEN ESTABLISHED TO DESIGNATE INSTITUTIONS BY HIGHEST LEVEL OF TRAINING:

1. Two but less than four years of work beyond the twelfth grade - includes junior colleges, technical institutes, and normal schools offering at least a two year program of college level studies;

2. Only the bachelor's and/or first professional degree - includes those institutions offering courses of studies leading to the customary bachelor of arts or bachelor of science degree, and all of these degrees which entitle the possessor to enter the profession indicated; e.g., doctor of medicine, bachelor of pharmacy, or bachelor of science in engineering;

3. Master's and/or second professional degree - includes those institutions offering the customary first graduate degree, and any degree earned in the same field after the first professional degree, or after a bachelor's degree in that field; e.g., the degree of electrical engineer, earned after the bachelor of engineering, or the degree of doctor of science of law earned after the bachelor of laws degree;

4. Doctor of Philosophy and equivalent degrees; and

5. Other.

"THE DESIGNATIONS OF INSTITUTIONS BY TYPE OF PROGRAM ARE AS FOLLOWS:

a. Terminal-occupational (below bachelor's degree) - to represent a program not extending beyond the fourteenth or fifteenth grade, designed to prepare directly for an occupation, but not extended to prepare for advanced study;

b. Liberal arts and general - including those institutions offering a four year program leading to the bachelor's degree;

c. Liberal arts and general, and terminal-occupational - for institutions offering programs described by "a" and "b" above;

d. Primarily teacher preparatory;

e. Liberal arts and general, and teacher preparatory;

f. Liberal arts and general, teacher preparatory, and terminal occupational;

g. Professional or technical - including those institutions offering a program of occupational preparation (excluding teacher preparatory);

h. Professional or technical, and teacher preparatory;

i. Professional or technical and terminal occupational;

j. Liberal arts and general with 1 or 2 professional schools; and

k. Liberal arts and general with 3 or more professional schools - including institutions organized as universities."

In previous monographs of this series, some indication of accreditation status was given. It has been decided to omit this from the present volume and the reader is referred, instead, to the U.S. Office of Education booklet, "Accredited Higher Institutions" (1952 edition) by Theresa Birch Wilkins. A 1956 edition of this booklet is, at the present writing, in the hands of the public printer.

Any institution not having a classification designation next to its name is one which is not listed in the aforementioned education directory. Defunct institutions are not individually identified but are grouped together according to the state in which they were located and are so listed.

Methodology and Sources of Data

Collection of data on which the present book is based began in 1951. Names of doctorate awardees back to 1936 were taken chiefly from the publication "Doctoral Dissertations Accepted by American Universities" compiled by the Association of Research Libraries and published by the H. W. Wilson Company of New York. These names were then submitted to the respective graduate deans for checking of doctoral data and to undergraduate deans and college presidents for checking of baccalaureate origins data.

The compilation of data, as it is now done, begins with the preparation of lists of newly granted doctorates from the commencement announcements of doctorate granting institutions. These announcements are regularly sent to the Academy-Research Council by all doctorate granting institutions. From each commencement announcement there is abstracted a list of doctoral awardees together with all items of information which are pertinent to this study. Each list is sent to the doctorate granting institution for verification, correction, and supplementation. The institution is requested to add any names or items of information which had been omitted and which are needed for this study.

When these lists are returned by the graduate institutions, analogous lists are made for each undergraduate college in the United States and Canada at which the doctorate awardees were supposed to have gotten their baccalaureate degrees. These college lists, with associated information, are sent to the proper officials of the baccalaureate colleges to be verified, corrected and supplemented. When a new name appears, regardless of its source, it is checked by the full routine here described. Thus all names are checked at the doctorate level and all individuals who got their baccalaureates in the United States or Canada are checked at the baccalaureate level. No attempt is made to check with foreign undergraduate institutions other than those in Canada.

When all of the information has been checked, a 5" x 8" data card is filled out for each doctorate awardee, the information is coded, and an I.B.M. card is punched. Analyses, tabulations, and lists are then made with I.B.M. equipment.

Acknowledgment of Support

Funds for the preparation and publication of this book and for the collection and processing of data upon which it is based were provided by the United States Office of Naval Research, The Fund for the Advancement of Education of the Ford Foundation, and the Carnegie Corporation of New York.

Part I. Production of Doctorates

This part of the monograph contains data on the production of doctorates in the several fields by doctorate granting institutions in the United States. There is a table showing production and another table showing rankings in production. Ranks may be computed in several ways and, in the present book, a rank number assigned to an institution indicates only how many institutions have a greater production, in a given field, than that institution. It does not indicate how many ranks precede that institution as was true in the two previous books of this series. Thus a ranking of "17" in Economics for "Institution A" would indicate that 16 institutions granted more doctorates in Economics, for the period stated, than "Institution A". A purely hypothetical demonstration of how this works is given here to make it clear:

	No. of doctorates produced	Rank as reported in this book	Rank as reported in two previous books of this series
Institution A	27	1	1st rank
Institution B	22	2	2nd rank
Institution C	21	3	3rd rank
Institution D	19	4	4th rank
Institution E	19	4	4th rank
Institution F	19	4	4th rank
Institution G	17	7	5th rank
Institution H	16	8	6th rank
Institution I	16	8	6th rank
Institution J	16	8	6th rank
Institution K	15	11	7th rank
Institution L	14	12	8th rank

Trend data are given in tabular and graphic form and a bar graph shows comparisons among the several fields in total production for the entire period, 1936-1950 inclusive. Preliminary on the production of doctorates in the years 1951, 1952, 1953 are given in Table 5. The data in this table still have to be verified but it is unlikely that any large errors are involved.

Part II. Baccalaureate Origins

This part of the monograph contains data on the baccalaureate origins of the doctorates tabulated in Part I. By baccalaureate origin is meant the school from which a person with a doctorate got his first baccalaureate degree or first professional degree. Very few persons earned a doctorate degree without first having been awarded a baccalaureate degree. In those cases in which this did happen, the institution at which the person received his last training of an undergraduate nature is credited as the baccalaureate origin.

Table 6 presents baccalaureate origins within the United States and territorial possessions and Table 8 presents foreign baccalaureate origins. Table 7 gives geographic data on baccalaureate origins within the United States. Table 9 contains rankings of the baccalaureate institutions as undergraduate origins of doctorates. The reader is referred to the text of Part I for an explanation of the ranking system used. Figure 7 graphically presents doctorate and baccalaureate origin production, by absolute numbers and percentage of the total, of nine regions of the United States. It permits a) comparison of baccalaureate and doctorate production within any region, b) comparisons among regions of baccalaureate and/or doctorate production, and c) comparison of baccalaureate and/or doctorate production with population percentages based upon the 1940 census.

The significance of the entries in the column "institutional classification," is explained in the introduction at the beginning of this book.

Part III. Additional Analyses

Three analyses are presented in this final section of the book. The first of these is an attempt to show the distribution of time lapses between the award of the baccalaureate and the award of the doctorate. Table 10 shows this for each field and for the total of all fields by five year periods and the whole fifteen year period. Cell entries in this table indicate the time lapses at each of five percentiles. These are the tenth, twenty-fifth, fiftieth, seventy-fifth, and ninetieth percentiles. These should in each case, give a fairly good picture of the distribution of time lapses, including central tendency and dispersion. Following Table 10 is a set of distribution curves (Figure 8) showing time lapse distributions for all fields, by five year periods and the total fifteen year period.

Table 11 shows, for each field and institution, the number of persons completing their doctorates at the same institution as the one of the baccalaureate degree. To convert this number to a percentage of total doctorates, the reader is asked to compare entries in Table 11 with entries in Table 1 as percentage figures are not directly given in this book.

The final table in the book compares four categories of schools as baccalaureate origins of doctorates. These categories are as follows:

a) U. S. schools which grant doctorate degrees,

b) U. S. schools at which the masters degree is the highest one awarded,

c) U. S. schools at which only baccalaureate degrees are awarded, and

d) All foreign schools.

The total number of doctorates in these categories is less than the total number included in this book. The difference is to be accounted for by those who did no undergraduate study at all or who did it at schools which are now defunct or are of less than baccalaureate status.

* In each case the time lapse, to the nearest tenth of a year, is given for the 10th percentile, the 25th percentile, the 50th percentile, the 75th percentile, and the 90th percentile. This should give a fairly good picture of each distribution of time lapses. A percentile indicates the percentage of the population having less than a given time lapse. Thus an entry of 4.3 under the 10th percentile for Anthropology and Archaeology means that 10% of the persons had a time lapse of less than 4.3 years.
